Why do you volunteer in	Every single one of us has an obligation to help make our community better

the community?	than how we found it. I'm fortunate to be able to donate services that help organizations either save money, raise funds or both! Jim Skrumbis, Head of School, Sierra Canyon School "I met Steve almost 20 years ago when he was one of the driving forces behind creating Sierra Canyon School. At Sierra Canyon we celebrate his service, generosity, and example. Steve is truly a fine and giving man." Dale Surowitz, Former CEO Providence Cedars-Sinai Tarzana Medical Center "Steve was instrumental in creating important introductions and helping us to secure major fundraising dollars that will benefit all throughout the Valley for generations to come."
How did you get started in volunteer service?	As a young boy, I had my heart set on becoming a police officer. However, my father had other plans for me - to run the family business. The motto "To Protect and To Serve" resonated with me though, so I did the next best thing. I joined the voluntary police force that helps support paid officers, the L.A.P.D. Reserves. I have been on the reserve force for over 40 years, and I still have a passion for it. Rickey Gelb, 2000 Fernando Award Recipient "Steve's dedication to serving the community is epitomized by his over 40 years of service to the LAPD as a reserve officer. Steve spends more time in a L.A.P.D. patrol car helping the people of the San Fernando Valley than he does in his own office."
Why do you continue to serve as a volunteer?	Helping people and making the community better is at the core of why I continue to volunteer. Deputy Fire Chief Trevor Richmond, LAFD "Steve invested many hours of his own time to familiarize himself with department operations. He visited fire stations in addition to the regularly scheduled meetings. Steve knew he needed to thoroughly understand the operations of the department so that he could offer insights that would be helpful." Deputy Chief Alan S. Hamilton, Valley Bureau, LAPD "Steve is the kind of citizen every community needs! He brings the time, resources and drive to improve the community and puts his blood, sweat, tears and time into improving every corner of this valley that he touches."
